COLLABORATIVE LEARNING IS FUN!

One of the four pillars of learning at MCS is collaboration, and Mrs. Marks' class implemented this in her classroom this week. In 8th grade, students studying U.S. History used a collaborative learning method called 'jot thoughts'. They collaborated in small groups to formulate as many ideas as they could from their topic of study and 'jot' or drew them on poster cards. Students then compared their thoughts with other groups in their class. This type of collaborative learning is interactive and engaging and facilitates student growth in many areas.
